Opt Out : The Only Way To Go

Did you know that every time someone pulls your credit report for a mortgage, you will receive many unsolicited calls from other lenders that very evening or the next day for up to a week or two?

These unsolicited calls are called "Trigger Loans", and in my opinion should be outlawed as a Violation of Privacy Rights. The credit Bureaus make millions every year by selling and reselling and reselling every single credit pull.

Did you know there is a way to prevent this from happening?

By having you go to optoutprescreen.com you can select to remove yourself from the onslaught of offers you may receive every time your credit is accessed for mortgage purposes.

The great thing about opoutprescreen.com is that the service is FREE. You can select to remove yourself for 5 years by signing up through the website. Additionally you have the ability to mail in the Permanent Opt-Out Election Form to be removed from the list permanently.

If you would like to prevent these solicitations, you can fill out to online form on the optoutprescreen.com website. It sometimes takes a few days for it to go into effect, so keep that in mind before you pull the initial credit report.

If you have any questions about removing yourself from the phone and e-mail list please contact Rick Storbeck.
